The 2013 Sigma Xi Virtual Annual Meeting Communicating Science in the 21st Century

The tumblr blogosphere, the Twitter-sphere, Facebook, vlogs, microblogs and other internet realms make us reconsider who is a scientist, how we do science, how we communicate science, how we share it, how we authenticate it, who owns it and how we co-create it.

Social media technologies are giving rise to a lively scientific discourse that takes us into unfamiliar space. How we inhabit that space and how it shifts endlessly are intriguing questions that call into account everything we've ever learned about the culture of science. Enter the portal with us at the annual meeting and travel beyond established pathways.
