

Benefits of Affiliation

As an Affiliate, you will join a unique circle of enthusiasts who recognize the value of science and encourage the advancement of scientific research. You will benefit from Sigma Xi's long tradition as the honor society of science and engineering; other benefits will include:

■ American Scientist

The bimonthly, illustrated magazine is written for science enthusiasts who are curious about developments across the spectrum of science and technology. (Student Affiliates receive online access only.)

■ American Scientist Online

The magazine's Web site offers convenient access to articles from the current issue as well as an archive back through 1998.

■ Affiliate Circle E-blast

The bimonthly e-newsletter keeps Affiliates up to date on Sigma Xi activities and programs, and includes special Affiliate news and features.

■ Special E-newsletters

Several free e-newsletters focus on new happenings in science, including

- Science in the News, a daily e-mail featuring top science and technology stories in the major media
- Scientists' Bookshelf Monthly, a bulletin that offers book news, discussions and reviews.

■ Sigma Xi Expeditions

Explore the world with groups of like-minded travelers and stimulating scientific experts who share a love of learning, discovery, and adventure via our partnership with Betchart Expeditions, Inc.

■ Discount Programs

The Society has a variety of programs that offer special discount opportunities for Affiliates. Please contact affiliateinfo@sigmaxi.org for more information.

Sigma Xi's Affiliate Circle

Share in the adventure of science. Connect with other science enthusiasts and like-minded advocates. Become part of Sigma Xi's proud history through its Affiliate Circle.

The Affiliate Circle allows this honor society to recognize those who make important contributions to scientific research, both inside and outside the laboratory. Sigma Xi welcomes all those who support its mission, including

- teachers and librarians who educate and encourage future researchers
- technicians who assist in research breakthroughs
- clinicians who translate research results into improved health
- students who will be tomorrow's scientists and engineers
- science enthusiasts whose support helps guide public policy in the advancement of research.

Affiliate Categories

Sigma Xi invites anyone who is interested in science and engineering to join its Affiliate Circle. Depending upon your interests and background, you may choose one of the following three Affiliate categories.

■ Professional

Individuals who work in or have earned a degree in science or engineering.

■ Friend

Individuals who support the mission of Sigma Xi but who are not directly involved in science or engineering.

■ Student

Students who are taking a curriculum of science, technology, engineering or math and are interested in pursuing research careers.

Sigma Xi, The Scientific Research Society

■ Our Members

Sigma Xi is a network of diverse, talented scientists and engineers who share a passion for scientific research. Representing all scientific disciplines, our members comprise the best and brightest at colleges and universities, industry research centers and government labs.

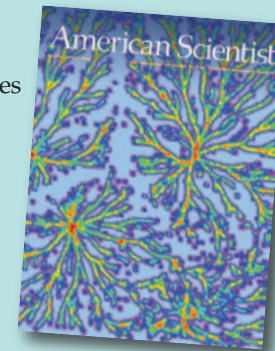

■ Our Purpose

Sigma Xi honors scientific achievement, fosters ethical research, and promotes science education and the public understanding of science. With its chapter-based structure, the Society encourages a sense of companionship and cooperation among scientists in all fields.

■ Our Activities

Sigma Xi addresses issues at the intersection of science and society—from its publications to its workshops and initiatives.

Through its flagship publication, American Scientist, Sigma Xi provides an illuminating window into recent scientific research.

The Society helps thousands of students further their careers with research grants in all areas of science and engineering.

Informal gatherings called Science Cafés engage scientists and the public in discussions on news-making topics—from stem cell research to space exploration.

Timely initiatives have included the publication of guidebooks on ethics in science and a joint project with the UN Foundation to develop practical responses to global climate change.
